

The World This Week

On the Western Front this week the Americans have clamped pinchers on Aachen, cutting the Nazi escape corridor to four miles. The Third Army took 1700 prisoners between Metz and Nancy. There was slow fighting in progress on the rest of the front.

On the Eastern front, two Soviet armies broke through on a 175-mile front in Lithuania and advanced toward Memei. The Russians reached the Tisza river in Hungary, 75 miles from Budapest.

The British neared Corinth on the Southern front and the Germans were reported ready to leave Athens as the campaign progressed. In Italy the Yanks were within ten miles of Bologna.

Thanksgiving Holidays

Thanksgiving holidays will be given to GSCW students this year, it was announced last week. The holidays will begin after classes Wednesday, November 29 and will last through Sunday, December 3. This week end will be given in addition to the three week-end trips which are allotted to every student.

Princess Sapieha, Noted Lecturer, Author, Plans To Return To Poland

"My children are Polish, certainly we expect to go back some day," said Princess Paul Sapieha, American-born wife of a Polish nobleman.

Princess Sapieha, noted lecturer and author of "Polish Profile" and "Beyond Our Shore," was featured on our lecture series as she spoke in Russell Auditorium October 9.

A most gracious and keenly intelligent person, Princess Sapieha spoke on this, her native and, as she can now see it after living seven years in Europe.

"Everything was so different," stated the Princess, in telling the changes she faced from an American school girl at Vassar to the life of a Polish prince on the great feudal estate of Rawa-Ruska. "The most enjoyable social events were the boar hunts and other outdoor life. There were also great balls, many gay parties and festivals—a fairy tale kind of life that ended when the Nazi conquerors came."

The princess visited many times in Germany and there were frequent trips to Vienna, Warsaw and other capitals. In Warsaw, she met Frau Goering at a luncheon party.

With the coming of the German army the Sapiehas escaped by way of Rumania, Hungary and France back to New York, where the Princess and her two children live. The Prince she proudly asserted is "overseas with the American Army."

Oct. 19, Date Set For Annual Hike

The Annual Hike, an event of the early fall, will be held on Thursday, October 19, at Treanor's Meadow, according to Betty Boyd, president of CGA.

Harriet Little will serve as general chairman of the hike committee, and the following girls have been selected as chairmen from the various dormitories:

Atkinson, Helen Wallace; Bell Hall, Patsy Ingle; Bell B, Harriet Little; Beeson, Angelyn Glisson; Miller Hall, Anne Dent; Terrell Proper, Marie Jackson; Terrell A, Dorothy Stevens; Terrell B, Margarette Hodges; Town Girls, Mary Virginia Harrison.

Eugenia Hollingsworth Wilson is in charge of singing, with Betty Cleveland and Betty Torrey assisting.

Others in charge of events are: bonfire, Helen Akin; faculty-senior softball game, Leila Calhoun.

Misses Mary Thomas Maxwell, Edna West, and Althea Whitney will act as judges for the skits.

Faculty Committee Passes Senior Code For 1944-45

Honor System Should Be Fused Into Larger Plan To Include All Social Relationships

The senior code for the 1944-45 session met with approval of the Faculty Student Relation Committee which passed it last week. The text of the code is as follows:

LETTIE OUTLAND

"We, the Senior Class of 1945, feel in this our last college year we need for a greater responsibility in our daily group living.

"We believe that the honor system on which our College government is based should be fused into a larger plan in which all social relationships would be included. We believe that such a plan will develop our sense of responsibility as present and future citizens; enrich our character; broaden our purpose; give us a greater feeling of oneness with our college and our fellow students; and make us more sensitive to the beauty and simplicity of tasteful and useful living. We recognize also that such a responsibility must involve consideration and respect for others in our group.

"We pledge ourselves to assume responsibility for our conduct individually and for the conduct of our guests and other members of our class. We will strive always toward the objectives of thoughtfulness and consideration, and realizing that certain restrictions are necessary to regulate our living in so large a group, we will uphold such particular regulations as are made by our council and approved by the class and by our Head of Residence."

Para-B Typhoid Crisis Alleviated

With the cooperation of the State Board of Health, the college administration has alleviated the crisis which existed in the epidemic of Para B Typhoid.

All food sources were examined by the health department and it recommended that certain cooks in the Atkinson dining hall be removed. The food service was reorganized to eliminate all possible sources of the germs. Continuation of any food source was dependent upon the approval of the health authorities.

The peak of the epidemic was reached Tuesday when 139 patients were in hospital care. Sixty-one girls were returned to classes Wednesday, 41 Thursday, and two Friday. During the epidemic, University Hospital Nurses were provided through the University System to relieve the shortage of nurses in the improvised wards. Beds were set up in the Rec Halls of Bell and the Bell Annex to provide bed space.

Health personnel of the State have stated that Para B Typhoid (Continued on Page Three)

You're Sure To Win

A fundamental factor in the success of any individual or group is the participation in religious activities. By activities, we mean not only those which are directly affiliated with a church or Sunday School, but also those which bring together members of every denomination, if only for a brief time.

On most college campuses such meetings are held either in the early morning before classes as Morning Watch, or after supper, as Vespers. Their purpose is not to preach. The main idea is to give to each person who attends a thought or idea which will help make her day, and ultimately her life, a better one.

At GSCW, Morning Watches are held in every dormitory immediately after breakfast, in the parlor. They rarely last more than a few minutes but they help start the day right. If you aren't already a participant, start tomorrow morning. You won't be sorry.

Motto: Every Student A CCK

Everybody has been reminding us of things we should do, of things we should not do, and of what our goals should be. Little has been said about keeping our campus clean for the excellent reason that college minded individuals should need no reminders. However, it does not always work out that way; some of us grow careless.

It is not idle vanity to say that our campus is one of the loveliest anywhere; therefore, all of us—and that means students, faculty members, passers-by—should strive to keep it beautiful. Just as we remember to keep our faces clean and our make-up in good repair, we should remember that our campus cannot show off its beauty when it is covered by unsightly refuse.

If every person would become a CCK, the need for a "Clean-Up Week" would eventually be eliminated.

*—Clean Campus Keeper.

Fine Spirit Prevailed Among Students

Now that the storm is over and gone, we have settled down to the regular routine of work, we perhaps have forgotten the suspense that accompanied the visit of paratyphoid B to the campus. Nevertheless, suspense did rear its head and we each wondered if we'd avoid his personal visit to us. All during B's stay, any one of you could have been driven into panic and fear, or grumbling and discontent when the milk and butter ceased to come, or extra work had to be met, but the spirit that prevailed was a grand one that should prevail in any emergency. And it is nice to think that now all is over and gone, we all feel just one mile closer to our next door neighbor because we were in this thing together.

Hugh Hodgson Opens Appreciation Series

Hugh Hodgson, pianist and head of the Music department of the University of Georgia, opened the Appreciation Hour series last Wednesday. He presented first a group of mixed selections, including one of his own arrangements, playing them through and then explaining them.

He emphasized Chopin's "Seven Preludes" by first playing a few measures of each, introducing the audience to parts and moods that otherwise might have been overlooked.

In conclusion, Mr. Hodgson played one of his compositions, whose rhythm was based on impressions given Mr. Hodgson by the South Georgia Negroes.

Town Girls' Privacy Invaded By Union

In the midst of a quiet conversation with a friend in their lounge, a bewildered Town Girl is often overcome with an emotion similar to that of the poet who wrote, "I will build me a house by the side of the road and watch the world go by." If she continues in this fantasy she might even believe that time has turned backward to the ancient historical period of "the confusion of the tongues."

But usually the clatter of dishes and the inviting aroma of hot donuts in the adjoining room brings her back to normalcy and the conclusion that all compromises have their compensations.

Alabama Is Scene Of Kroll's Novel

The South has been brought into the public eye again by the novel of Harry Kroll. His "Water Over the Dam" brings the problems and joys of a people forgotten into its own.

Alabama is the southern state mentioned and the people are black and white laborers. It is the story of the 18-year-old hired boy, the family who hired him and his happiness found there.

Education is placed before him and his school teacher tempts him both with bright visions of higher education and her affections. Humor is provided by the dardies working in the cotton fields. Contentment comes with the quiet and infantile pleasures found by Danny, the hired boy, and Rennie, the girl of the story.

"Water Over the Dam" will remind you of something all southerners will appreciate.

960 Enrolled At GSCW Fall Quarter

Dean Hoy Taylor has announced that 960 students are enrolled for the fall quarter. This number includes 49 cadet nurses who are training here. Between 20 and 25 applications for admittance to GSCW were turned down due to lack of sufficient territory space. Several of these have applied for admittance for winter quarter and will probably be enrolled at that time.

League Of Women Voters Studies Problems And Influences Legislation

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which constantly studies the problems of government and works to obtain solutions to these problems by influencing the passing of necessary legislation. The League was organized immediately upon the granting of female suffrage in this country in 1920.

The Georgia League is one of about 31 affiliate state leagues, and in addition there are many local leagues throughout the state. There are also various college leagues. Since the extension of the vote to 18-year-olds, special emphasis is being given to the organization of College Leagues.

The Georgia League works to keep the voters of Georgia informed about the state government. The League, through special committees, makes comprehensive studies of platforms and candidates. Before each election it publishes facts about candidates' records and explains the issues involved. The League directly sponsors legislation.

The League carries on its work by keeping in close touch with state officials, by keeping records of elected officials, and by keeping the public informed through the radio, and its own publication, The Georgia Voter. The League makes known to the general public its opinions on government measures and the reasons behind them.

The League never endorses candidates. It does enforce measures, and asks candidate to support them if elected. The League urges non-voters to become voters, and urges voters to become more intelligent and enlightened voters.

out of the fact that the League acts as well as talks. It has worked to accomplish such things as the recent creation of the State Pardon and Parole Board. The law providing for this board was written by the League itself, which for over two years had worked on this particular problem.

The present platform, drawn up by the League after thorough study, advocating among other reforms, the consolidation of counties and county functions and the elimination of the poll tax as a requirement for voting. It is also working with the committee appointed to revise the state constitution.

Mrs. John C. Blalock, president of the Georgia League of Women Voters, will speak to the student body at G.S.C.W. in the near future about the possibility of organizing a college league on the campus. Membership is restricted to students of legal voting age, which is now 18 years. A College League gives the students an opportunity to practice, as well as study good government while still in school.

Library Provides Happy Hunting; Attendance Doubles 1943-44 Record

No, there's no gold hidden in the shelves or a nylon hose in the archives of the GSCW library, but the rush is on and the library ranks high as the most popular spot on the campus.

The reserve room dim-out is also a thing of the past and this addition of new inflorescent lighting has made that storehouse of much used freshman social science and humanities books a much more liveable and usable place.

Let us ponder on the facts and figures as compared with last year. On the third day of rule, rigor and recitation last year, 407 students studied earnestly in Ina Dillard Russell's famed halls and this year the rule, rigor and recitation put on more vim, vigor and vitality as 789 students in the same halls. Just as this number, every day thus far has been almost double to the number for the corresponding day of last year. And we must not forget in our facts and figures that the school enrollment has increased only from 214 to 238—far from double.

To ease the worried minds of those who feared that with no Saturday classes the day would be one of fun and frolic, here are those figures. While the first Saturday of last year (with classes, no home-going and no epidemic) only 67 used the library, our first Saturday this year found 315 in our library.

Double deckers and crowded halls may have helped spur this migration on, but regardless of reason, the library has proven a refuge for all those seeking and finding after knowledge.

Health Club Plans To Bring Speaker, Health Movies To Campus

Plans for the coming quarter were made at the second meeting of the Health Club on Wednesday night, October 4. The program as outlined by Harriet Little, vice-president, included proposals for bringing speakers and health movies to the campus, for sponsoring drives and arousing student interest in vital health problems, and for many interesting social activities.

Foremost in the present aims of the club is to make the cadet nurses here feel a part of our organization and school. A social party in the form of a Coca-Cola party has been planned for them.

The membership has increased greatly and all girls interested in this work who are health majors or minors and pre-nursing students are cordially invited to join.

Granddaughters Club Discusses Parents Day

Plans for a party were made at the first meeting of the Granddaughters Club at a business meeting Tuesday night, October 3, in the Alumnae Office. Dot Stevens is in charge of further arrangements for the party which is scheduled for Tuesday night, October 17 at seven o'clock.

Parents Day to be sponsored by Granddaughters Club on which the campus would be visited by the parents of all GSCW girls was also discussed.

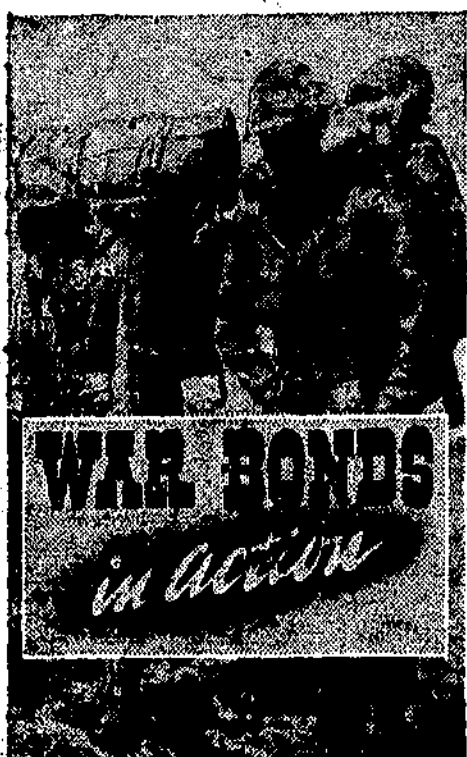

One feature of the meeting was the enrollment of Frances Massey of Fitzgerald, whose grandmother attended GSCW.

The officers of the club are Betty Cox, president; Mildred Johnson, vice president; Carolyn Crow, secretary; Jackie Lovett, treasurer; Betty Reeves, social chairman.

General topics to be considered at the three program sessions of the historians meeting will be the Confederacy, Southern Rural economy, and cultural and intellectual aspects of Southern life.

First Chapel Sing Proves Successful

A chapel sing was held under the direction of Mr. Max Noah on Tuesday morning, October 3. Both the student body and the WAVE choir, or the "Singing Keys" participated.

Conducted by Mr. Noah and accompanied by Miss Mary Burgess, the WAVES rendered several selections including a "Medley of Navy Songs," the "Navy Hymn," "Tantum Ergo," "Sky Anchors" and "Waves of the Navy."

It was announced that sings would be held once every month if the student body showed interest and spirit in them. Programs of this type offer to each student a chance to participate actively in chapel.
